All tasks were completed for this sprint by the deadline, with most work being planned and decided early on and mainly completed in the second week since the new features were pretty involved and there is a lot of course work in these final weeks.

Compared to the last sprint, we didn't finish as much earlier but we were more consistent and able to finish in the long run and didn't have any added goals in the middle. The last sprint had 36 story points total while this had 52, but I feel that we learned from what went wrong last time and were able to support each other better to get through connected tasks.
