

The story points were only added a few days into the sprint, since we had to wait for communication with the TA for the new feature before being able to formally plan everything out.

All tasks were completed for this sprint by the deadline, mostly preparing in the first week and finishing in the second week. Compared to the last sprint, we finished at about the same rate. The last sprint had 52 story points while this had 43, but most of the tasks were more independent of each other this time.
